AANA Elections

The ballots are out and AANA members are given the opportunity to participate in assuring the future of our profession. The Board of Directors sets policy, prepares a budget and hires the chief executive to run the organization. Those CRNAs who volunteer their time, often sacrificing family and work commitments, are the backbone of our profession. We urge you to give a lot of thought to who you elect to the AANA BOD. Read the bios, contact those running for office and talk with other CRNAs who may have a personal knowledge of the candidates.

Anesthesia Business Academy is endorsing the following two CRNAs who are on the ballot.

John Hanlon for President-elect.

Dina Velocci for Vice-President

Both of these candidates have shown by their actions a strong understanding of the major issues affecting our profession and are prepared to take AANA out of the recent internal politics and into the fast-changing world of healthcare economics. We need leaders who understand the power of the profession is with the AANA and how to take that power to increase our public awareness, to define our profession and to ensure CRNAs are considered the experts in anesthesiology.

Dina is on the Board of Directors of Anesthesia Business Academy and her energy and intelligence are noteworthy in our start-up. John, as an educator has demonstrated the need for his students to be prepared in understanding the Business of Anesthesia.

While we appreciate the willingness of all who are on the ballot to serve, we believe both Dina and John represent the change that is critical to our future.
